Retired Chief Librarian
Universities’ Central Library
ABSTRACT

UCL has an adequate collection of old Myanmar manuscripts. 15163 palm-leaf manuscripts (Pay sa) and 4037 parabaik (folding paper) have hold respectively (Dec. 2016 accessioned). It contains 26 number of white parabaiks and the rest in black. The study in this paper is excluded white parabaiks. There has in four types of catalogue for parabaiks in UCL; card form in Myanmar language, soft copy in English translation, eCatalogue form in ELIB system and book form as a research project. The first two types comprise all parabaiks of the collection and the last two types consist of some selected parabaiks. Catalogue entry formats are content with sufficient fields to give useful information for readers and researchers. In this paper all types of parabaik catalogues are organized and presented with some sample records for easy findings to specific subject field for the researchers. The most useful subjects are guided. This paper invites scholars and makes encourage for coming out more research works of valuable old manuscripts by the help of the effective catalogues from UCL.
Cataloguing Parabaiks in the Universities' Central Library

Ancient Myanmar manuscripts are valuable national heritage and documents of historical, cultural and social life of Myanmar in the past time.

UCL has an adequate collection of old Myanmar manuscripts. Chief Librarian U Thein Han (1946-1968) started the collection of ancient Myanmar manuscripts since 1952 and his successor U Thaw Kaung, Chief Librarian (1969-1997) has collected the traditional manuscripts over three decades around the country. By the year 2000 the Resource Centre for Ancient Myanmar Manuscripts (RCAMM) was established as a branch of UCL and it was a largest depository of Myanmar traditional manuscripts. UCL Chief Librarian Daw Tin Phone Nwe followed the track of her predecessors to collect the rare manuscripts. Librarians and staffs were travelling around the country, searching manuscripts, taking inventories, cleaning and repairing and collecting which are donated and purchased. Some of rare manuscripts were microfilming and digitized. In the term of RCAMM over 3000 manuscripts (pay sar and parabaiks) had added to the UCL collection. Now the whole collection of manuscripts has placed together in UCL.

15163 palm- manuscripts (Pay sa) and 4037 parabaik manuscripts (folded paper writings) have held respectively (update Dec. 2016). It contains 26 number of white parabaiks and the rest in black. White parabaiks in UCL are called colour parabaiks which are painted with natural colour used by vegetable oil, soot of crude oil. These valuable colour parabaiks collected in UCL are paintings on life of Buddha, royal palace, royal occasions, royal hair styles, etc. The study in this paper is excluded the white parabaiks.

The black parabaiks are like the note books describing all sorts of events and subject matters as daily life or recorded the important occasions of Myanmar history. These were commonly used by ordinary people usually kept by individuals and families. Each parabaik has at least one item and up to over one hundred items had noted. These are the valuable sources of Myanmar life and customs to study and discovering the past.

The various types of parabaiks are classified according to the number of folds (yay-zee) which range from a single fold (hlwa-chin) to 64 folds (hsu htat). UCL has collected these various sizes of parabaiks in good condition and proper storage.

The large size Parabaik which UCL had collected is Pbk 2470, consisted 42 folds and measured 52cm x 22cm. It has recorded the list of the maids of King Mindon’s mother in the palace. (Myanmar title: မိဖားသမား၏ အက်းကျော်တို့စာရင်း)

Smallest size parabaik in UCL contained 40 folds and its measurement is 6.5cm x 8cm. It is noted Myanmar history in King Thayawaddy reign. (Myanmar title: သူ၏ အက်းကျော်တို့စာရင်း) There are miscellaneous writings on various subjects; astrology, architecture, administration, arithmetic, customary law, economics, history, language and literature, medicine, etc. These are treasure of UCL and valuable source for scholar to trace the past and to understand the present in traditional texts.

Parabaik catalogues in UCL

There are four types of catalogue for parabaiks in UCL.

1. Card catalogue in Myanmar Language
2. English translation catalogue in soft copy
3. eCatalogue

1. Card catalogue in Myanmar Language

   All parabaiks are catalogued in Myanmar language by Manuscript Section on 5”x 3” cards; some parabaiks have attached catalogue on the cover.

   Each card includes complete information of physical description of parabaik and arranged by accession number and entered by title of the text. Some titles are originally written on the parabaik and some titles are given with appropriate names by the cataloguer.

   On the card catalogue the following fields are comprised-

   (a) Accession  (b) Title-Myan.  (c) Kind of pbk (d) Number of Lines  (e) Number of Folds (f) Size  (g) Page number (h) Language (i) Literary form (j) note
UCL had granted a project from Toyota Foundation for the year 2002-2003, with the title "Cataloguing the traditional manuscripts (parabaik) in the collection of Universities Central Library". Over 3600 items are catalogued with annotations.

Project team contained skilled librarians on ancient Myanmar manuscripts and catalogue format includes 19 fields for the research purpose. It was in Myanmar language.

In the following years after the Toyota Project these Parabaik catalogues are translated into English language and available in soft copy on MS Word. It will be created a database and searchable keywords of parabaiks soon.

9 fields are added more than the former card catalogue form. These fields are as followed and sample form is attached.

(1) Author (Myanmar) (2) Author (English) (3) Author (Transliteration) (4) Title (Myan) (5) Title (Eng) (6) Title (Transliteration) (7) Date (M.E) (8) Date (A.D) (9) Kind of Parabaik (10) Number of Line (11) Number of Fold (12) Size (13) Language (14) Form of Writing (15) Accession Number (16) Source (17) Contents (18) Annotation (19) Subject.

A few records of parabaik catalogues are described as examples to preview the sources with full descriptions.

Some of these 300 numbers of parabaiks are entry in ELIB web-based library automation system which was implemented in UCL for 17 years long ago. Records contain the complete information with fields and users can search with author, title, subject and any keywords. It provides reports in which form of the staff need.

![Patabaik catalogue entry on ELIB System]

In 2009 we had done a research project under the "Index of the letters on the Parabaiks from the Universities Central Library". It consists of 316 parabaiks and cover all kinds of letters on various subject matters.
Conclusion

I would like to express my gratitudes to the organizers of this Symposium; Ide Laboratory, Kyoto Uni and Yangon Universit Library especially to the Chief Librarian Dr Hlaing Hlaing Gyi for her effective hard work. It is hoped that these annotated catalogues are useful for students and scholars for their studies and research works on traditional text. Also this paper would give information and link to ancient manuscripts to study on Myanmar history, culture, social life and customary rulings, etc.
